

“ YOU SAID IT ”

What are you secretly thankful for this year?

“Noggin and Sesame Street, so I can manage to take a morning shower.”
—Liz Smyth, Morris Plains, NJ

“That our Thanksgiving is done potluck style, so I’m responsible for only one thing. Double thanks: Usually it’s the turkey, which my husband cooks!”
—Melissa Stickney, Bay Village, OH

“That on Thanksgiving, my kids will be so tired from playing with their cousins, they’ll sleep through the night.”
—Reni Matsushita, New York City

“My new dressy Ann Taylor pants that do a good job hiding the ten baby pounds I still have to lose!”
—Alix McLean, Madison, NJ

“Chili for Thanksgiving. No, really! It reduces my stress, and my family loves it, every one of them.”
—Kaelyn Porter, Idaho Falls, ID

“Nutella.”
—Dimitry McDowell Davis, Colorado Springs

Adorable or inappropriate?

A company called Heelarious has come out with these high-heeled baby booties ($35; heelarious.com). They’re soft and safe, but what do you think of them?

86%

They’re totally wrong for babies. Hate ‘em!

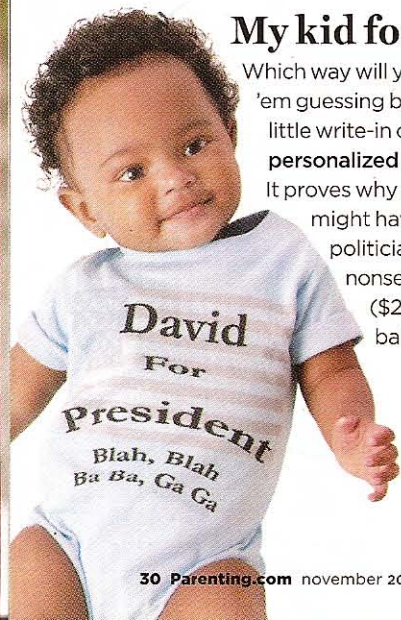

14%

They’re just hysterical. Love ‘em!

—Parenting.com poll

My kid for prez!

Which way will you vote? Keep ‘em guessing by outfitting your little write-in candidate in this personalized one-piece suit. It proves why your baby just might have a future as a politician: He’s got the nonsense talk down pat! ($20; cafepress.com/babypresident)

the baby crazies

\the bā-bē krā-zēs\
The overwhelming urge, just as soon as you’ve celebrated changing your last diaper, to get pregnant all over again. (Seek help!)

